

FUNDS

There are many reasons why people create funds at CCF to do their charitable giving. They are often personal. They reflect life experiences – hardship, blessings, triumph and loss.

There is a story behind every fund and many of our donors generously share their stories in the hope that others will be inspired to give back in their own way.

Listen to a few of them. Perhaps, one day, you will share your story with us, too.

Dr. and Mrs. George Brumley of Charleston and ten of their immediate family members are tragically killed in a plane crash in Africa... the Brumley Family Memorial Fund now supports the grantmaking of Daniel Island Community Fund, which was near to Dr. Brumley's heart.

Donna and Mike Griffith of John's Island find a way to combine their love of art and the Lowcountry... the Donna and Mike Griffith Lowcountry Artist Award makes an annual gift to an artist to produce and exhibit work that reflects the "look and feel" of the Lowcountry.

Phillip and Rebecca Lammonds of Pawley's Island wanted their children, Cooper Joseph and Martha Grace, to understand the value of supporting their community...the Lammonds Family Fund will involve their children in giving.

Harriet Williams of Charleston comes from a long line of outspoken women who championed a woman's right to family planning as far back as 1937... the Harriet Simons Williams Fund supports Planned Parenthood programs, teenage pregnancy prevention and women's health programs.

Share your story with us and give back through CCF in a way that best suits your charitable interests and financial needs. You may create a fund with as little as $10,000 and build it over time. You may also choose between seven basic types of funds that are described below.

Our thanks to all of the donors who helped establish the Management Fund with a one-time gift in 1987 and to each and every donor who gives so generously to the Annual Fund year after year.
